Creekside Golf Club

Creekside Golf Club is an 18-hole private golf facility that was designed on 159 acres of rolling terrain, surrounded by wooded slopes, meandering streams and delicate wetland flora.

During the design of Creekside Jacobsen Hardy Golf Course Design was faced with a challenge presented by existing floodway and floodplain conditions created by three creeks - Battle Creek, Powell Creek, and Jory Creek. Jacobsen Hardy Golf Course Design worked closely with the project team engineers and local regulatory agencies to create golf holes within the boundaries of the floodplain.

The result - two distinctively different nines. The front nine is a traditional core golf course that is routed through magnificent oak and maple trees and ancient Douglas firs. Golfers emerge from this forest into a new environment consisting of golf holes that criss-cross Jory and Battle Creek out on the floodplain. The finishing hole tumbles downhill to a green setting that hangs out into a lake.

The back nine is more of a links-style course complete with dramatic views, defined by a variety of lovely wildflowers and native grasses. Four of the holes on this nine serve as a showcase for the adjacent housing development. This nine also features an old rock quarry with shear walls that serve as a dramatic backdrop for the 17th green and part of the 18th fairway.

Throughout the 18-hole design at Creekside Jacobsen Hardy Golf Course Design successfully utilized the property's natural characteristics to minimize the impact on the existing eco-systems and ultimately created an outstanding golf course facility.

Creekside is truly an enjoyable and playable golf course for golfers of all levels.
