Moorpark Country Club

Moorpark Country Club is a 27-hole, semi-private, facility designed throughout the mountainous ridge tops and canyon floors of Grimes Canyon, located just outside of Thousand Oaks in the community of Moorpark, California. The three loops of nine offered Jacobsen Hardy the opportunity to develop three unique golfing experiences. As their names suggest, the three nines, Ridge, Canyon, and Valley, combine to showcase the natural environments found within the site.

The design at Moorpark Country Club provided the Jacobsen Hardy team with a difficult task. Take a rugged and mountainous piece of property with severe elevation changes and create a beautiful, playable, sustainable golf course while staying sensitive to the client's budget and satisfying the local governmental and environmental agencies. By implementing Jacobsen Hardy design philosophies, incorporating the natural elements of the site, and utilizing native plant materials, Moorpark Country Club is a challenging yet playable design that is as beautiful and environmentally sound as any design in the JHGCD portfolio.

The opening holes of the Ridge nine showcase some of the highest points of the property providing stunning views of the Simi Valley to the east, the Pacific Ocean to the west, and mountains to the north and south. On the Canyon nine a dry wash was incorporated into the design. A series of spectacular golf holes play along and across this feature. The Valley nine took on its own identity, featuring holes that play through a valley environment offering the golfer a different golfing experience.

By working closely with the project engineers, city offices, and the staff at Toll Brothers, Jacobsen Hardy Golf Course Design was able to overcome the difficulties presented and created what should be a popular and successful golf facility for our client and the golfing community.
